Later in the week, beginning Thursday evening, she will play "A Doll's House," already familiar to many Washington admirers of her work. Chef interest in the Nazimova gnagagement, of course, will be centered in the new play. The author is also CASINO. Continuous Vandeville.

The story of "The Passion Flower" centers in the experience of Vivien Rodman, butterfly wife of a banker, upon whom ruln is brought because of his wife's extravagance. The wife's extravagance. The woman's Gladys Van. Frank Bush, the Country mistakes are those of ignorance and Choir, the City Minstrels and Hawley inexperience rather than weakness of moral character. At first she is shown Though as a playful child wife, later as a frivo-lous social leader and finally is exposed to the toils of designing men-one a banking rival of her husband and one an interloper in the household.

The play has the material for a great play and it should afford Madame Nazinova ample opportunity for her power to contrast emotions.

As a delineator of Ibsen characters Madame Nazimova has attained a wide vogue in this country and the Nora of "A Doll's House" has proved one of the most popular of her roles.

NATIONAL-"The Fair Co-Ed." By way of leavening for the serious-ness of a Nazimova engagement there

It is claimed that Miss Janis' dramatic powers have developed in the last two years and that she will be given occasional opportunities for genuine acting in the new piece. Imitations of well-known actors will call into play her well-known powers as a mimic.

COLUMBIA—"Sham."

The Times review of "Sham" on its last appearance here pronounced the comedy one of the best within several seasons and gave to Miss Henrietta Crosman the credit of having a better role than she has appeared in for the role than she has appeared in for the same length of time.

Since leaving here the play has had a osperous engagement of six months of Miss Mamel Taliaferro at the Colum at Wallack's Theater, New York.

The play aims a shaft of satire, which not too biting to be enjoyable; at odern society life. It tells of a young oman whose social ambitions were woman whose social ambitions were fostered by her aunts by incurring heavy debts on all sides. It hits heavily at social pretenders.

Miss Henrietta Crosman has the part of Katherine Van Riper, a young society woman with pedigree and expensive tastes who has not the income to support her expensive tastes.

Some of the comedy scenes in the play are delicious.

Another importation is due at Chase's this week. It consists of Marie Dainton, whose success in London music halls had been borne to American shores long before the dainty Miss Dainton set foot on its territory.
